

"SIMPLY HAD TO ELOPE," SAYS BRIDE

Parental Objections No Bar to This Twain.

PHONE AIDS THE LOVING ONES

John Whalen, twenty-one, and Miss Vera Cole, nineteen, outwit her parents—fleeing to Baltimore, they find churchly dispensation necessary.

After encountering various difficulties and obtaining a special dispensation by telephone from the pastor of the bridegroom's church in this city, John Whalen, twenty-one years old, an employee in the Government Printing Office, and Miss Vera I. Cole, nineteen years old, were married in Baltimore, following an elopement from this city last Friday.

They returned to Washington yesterday after a one-day honeymoon in Baltimore and are at the home of the bride's father, 1211 Four-and-a-half street, southwest.

For some time the young couple had been engaged, but because of their father's opposition, they decided to elope. After a final appeal to him last week, the young couple decided upon the elopement. Arriving at Baltimore early Friday morning they obtained the necessary dispensation from the parish house of the cathedral, where they requested Father McKinney, the pastor, to perform the ceremony.

Obtains the Consent.

He declined until he should receive word from the bridegroom's pastor in Washington that there was no objection to the wedding. Young Whalen promptly called on St. Thomas' Church, in this city, and from his pastor obtained the word of consent that made the marriage possible.

Meanwhile, parents of the young couple were endeavoring to locate them. The message left behind, "We are going to get married," gave no clue as to their whereabouts, and "hasty" railroad tickets and other places brought no information regarding them.

After their marriage the young couple remained one night at the home of Mr. J. Langlois, who had been a friend of the bride's father. Subsequently they returned to the bride's home, where Whalen's father-in-law insisted on their remaining.

Just Had to Elope.

"We simply had to elope," said the young bride last night. "My father and mother had persistently refused to consent to my marriage, declaring I was too young to know my own mind. When I finally realized it was impossible to persuade them to let me marry, I used my plan to go to sea. WINTER PLANS COMPLETED.

National Republican Club Arranges Series of Entertainments.

The board of governors of the National Republican Club has perfected plans for the holding of regular monthly meetings, besides a series of club nights, during the fall and winter seasons. Edward E. Smith, chairman of the Republican State committee, of Minnesota; J. A. Egbert, of Alexandria, Va.; W. W. Anderson, of Richmond, Va.; Alexander A. Alderman, assistant United States attorney for the Northern District of Georgia, and Judge Wilfred C. Lane, of Valdosta, Ga. President Taft was elected an honorary member. MEN AND BOYS ARRESTED.

Held as Violators of Law Against Nuisances on Street.

Sixty-two men and boys, alleged violators of the law against nuisances, were arrested Saturday night in a raid conducted by Capt. Daley and Lieut. Falvey against lotteries in H street northeast. All of those arrested were charged with disorderly conduct and were compelled to deposit collateral ranging from $5 to $10 for their appearance in the Police Court this morning.

Numerous complaints have been filed recently by merchants and the residents of the northeast section. The police have been powerless to break up the practice. Most of the complaints, according to the police, have been filed against masqueraders.

HONOR "FIGHTING PARSON."

German Americans Observe Birthday of Revolutionary Hero.

Coinciding with the sixth biennial convention of the National German-American Alliance, which will assemble October 6 at the New Willard, to be in session until October 9, the German societies of Washington yesterday observed the birthday anniversary of Rev. John P. G. Muhlenberg, the "fighting parson" of the American Revolution and one of Gen. Washington's most intimate friends.

The question of erecting a monument to this great German-American in this city was discussed and probably will be brought to the attention of the national convention. It was argued that Muhlenberg is a prominent figure in the history of the Revolution, and should be honored, or otherwise in the nation's Capital City the same as other Revolutionary heroes.

ROSAIRY PROCESSION

GIVEN BY CHILDREN

Boys and Girls of St. Martin's Honor Holy Feast.

A beautiful rosary procession, honoring the Feast of the Most Holy Rosary, which was celebrated in the Catholic churches throughout the world yesterday, was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock in St. Martin's Church.

The procession was made up of 103 boys and girls of St. Martin's parish, skillfully arranged by the sisters in charge so as to represent in their formation the design of the rosary. It was led by the cross-bearer, typifying the crucifix, at the beginning of the rosary. The beads which are used by Catholics as introductory to the rosary proper were represented appropriately, and then followed the children representing the fifteen decades of the rosary.

The procession, a leading boy, followed by ten small boys, typifying one decade of the rosary, and a leading girl, with ten small girls, taking the succeeding decade of the rosary, followed by the children of the five last decades, known as the glorious "mysteries." Wore yellow sashes.

Magnificent banners, picturing scenes in the life of Christ and the Blessed Virgin Mary, which are commemorated in the devotion of the rosary, were carried in the procession, as well as a profusion of cut flowers. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament concluded the devotion which was attended by a very large congregation.

Sisters from Trinity College at Brookland, who conduct St. Martin's Sunday school, were in charge of the procession.

Nine Drown at Preveza.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 1.—The Greek merchant ship Astor arrived here to-night with the information that in the attempt of the Turkish torpedo boats to get away from the Italian squadron near Preveza, the captain of one of them was killed and eight of the crew drowned when the boat was run ashore. The other boat, as previously reported, reached the Preveza harbor.

The Astor also brought the information that seven Italian war vessels were engaged in the bombardment of Preveza. The inhabitants of the place were greatly frightened and were fleeing in the direction of Jania.

Former Ambassador Straus Hopes for Mediation.

New York, Oct. 1.—Following his suggestion of prompt mediation by the United States between Italy and Turkey to prevent the spread of hostilities and the possible embolism of other nations, made in his telegram sent to Secretary Knox on Friday, Oscar S. Straus, former United States Ambassador to Turkey, is waiting to learn what the State Department thought of his plan to act under The Hague peace treaties.

"I fear that the war," said Mr. Straus, "will not be confined to Tripoli, and that it will cause uprisings in Turkey and conflicts with the Balkan States. In the face of such a possibility it is better that the office of mediation should be employed now than to await such eventualities, which may bring about conflicts that will arouse the antagonism of the powers not only against Turkey, but against another power."

"Is this war likely to arouse the antagonism of the powers against all Christians, Americans and other Europeans as well as the Muslims?" he was asked. "That is quite possible," said Mr. Straus. "There may be general uprisings of the people, and mobs make no distinction between Christians and Muslims. So far as her army was concerned, Mr. Straus continued, Turkey was well equipped for the struggle. It regarded the Turkish army, he said, "as equal to any in Europe in courage, durability, and efficiency. It is commanded by capable officers, thanks to the skill and genius of Germany's greatest general, Gen. Von Goltz, who devoted the best years of his life to training the Turkish army."

"The head of the army, Scherker Pasha," continued Mr. Straus, "is as fine a soldier as I ever met. He is a man of great executive ability and a gallant leader. He was head of the army corps that marched from Saloniki to Constantinople and deposed the Sultan."

"The Turkish soldier doesn't know what fear is. He can live on less and endure more than any other soldier in the world. He is an efficient fighting machine, and religion intensifies his patriotism."

"The Turk's fatalism, Mr. Straus declared, was a factor in his make-up to be reckoned with in assessing his value as a fighter."

Mr. Straus did not accede to the view that this country had no right to offer its services as arbitrator until they were asked by the parties at war. "Our country," he asserted, "is not only perfectly justified to offer its good offices, but the very fact that our country is not hampered by alliances imposes, as it were, that obligation upon our government."

Mr. Straus' suggestion has been telegraphed to Secretary of State Knox, who has left Valley Forge, Pa., his home, on a motor trip, which will shortly end at Hot Springs, Va. Mr. Knox will refer Mr. Straus' request to the President.

HAZEN'S 'POSSUM HUNTERS' TELL CONFLICTING TALES

District Surveyor and Party Return from Invasion of Virginia Hills, but Deviate in Number of Killed and Wounded.

Oh, yes; quite a number of possums and squirrels were captured and eaten or caged by Melville C. Hazen, District Surveyor, who led a party of Intrepid Washingtonians into the mountain fastnesses of Virginia Saturday. Everybody returned last night. Jack Armstrong, John Balingier, Mark Hale, Foster Causey, and John Shinn all returned.

When they arrived, slightly muddy and very hungry, at Union Station last night members of the party showed a disposition to deviate in the number of killed and wounded. John Shinn, for instance, killed three possums and two squirrels, until he reached the street car, when he suddenly remembered five squirrels that he had picked off with a .22 Winchester.

Mr. Hazen increased the carnage at the rate of a possum for every five steps. Had he walked home he would have depopulated Virginia. C. McMaster Willoughby, a resident of the mountain district of Virginia, who acted as guide, was sure that he had killed forty "possums. He didn't recall the number that the rest of the boys had killed. He had also killed thirty or forty squirrels.

"We were joined by numerous farmers," explained Mr. Hazen, "and the party that went on the hunt numbered twenty-one in all. We had nine dogs. The night was singularly fine, and we killed—"

Oh, well, it doesn't make any difference. They ate the squirrels before they came home and left the possums down in Virginia to fatten up. So the death rate may have been whatever any individual made it.

The party ate the alleged squirrels at the farmhouse of Mr. Hazen, near Noakesville, Va. And as Mr. Hazen is a cordial host, the squirrels didn't necessarily form the piece de resistance.

or lacking in ability to impose obedience on its dependents—a government which has failed to keep toward Italy its international duties."

"The conflict which appears to have broken out between Italy and Turkey is only the epilogue of a long series of vexations and abuses even more real than the present, against Italy and Italians, by the authorities of the Ottoman empire," the statement begins.

"Italy was compelled to give up any and every hope of a peaceful settlement with Turkey. Having lost faith in the many vain words and promises given by Turkey in late years, and having lost patience, she decided to abandon her policy of forbearance which might be interpreted as a sign of weakness and an acknowledgment of inferiority. Italy has firmly resolved to obtain with the greatest energy the respect of her own rights and the protection of her own interests."

"The blame will fall upon those who for the last three years have daily provoked us, causing, by way of small or serious incidents, an atmosphere of hostility in the several provinces of the empire, and especially Tripolitania, thus rendering uncertain the safety of the Italian subjects and endangering the pursuit of peaceful commerce of Eritrea in the Red Sea."

As near as could be ascertained, the Turkish Ottoman colony is confined to a few mendicants.

ITALY GIVES HER REASONS

FOR ENTERING UPON WAR

Why did Italy go to war? Marchese di San Giuliano, Italian minister of foreign affairs, has answered the question in an 1,800 word cable message to Signor G. Parla Fori, his consul general at New York. The statement recites in detail numerous alleged instances of injustice, cruelty, and barbarity by the Turks toward Italian subjects; speaks of "justice eternally delayed and complaints eternally involved," tells of alleged piratical acts by the Moslems on the high seas and against the Italian flag; charges bloodshed, cruelty, and murders against the Ottoman subjects, and indicts the Sultan's administration as "a government either without authority

HIBERNIANS VOTE SUCCOR TO AUSTIN

Local Division, No. 1, Comes to Aid of Flood Sufferers.

Division No. 1, Ancient Order of Hibernians, at its meeting yesterday, adopted resolutions instructing the national board of the order to rush assistance to the stricken people of Austin and Costello, Pa. It was voted to allow the use of as much money for that purpose as may be necessary. Division No. 1 is the first fraternal organization to come to the relief of the flood victims.

A resolution was passed to assist to make the convention of the National German-American Alliance, which meets in this city October 6 to 9, a great success and welcome the visiting delegates and friends, thereby attesting the friendship between the German and Irish people of this country.

Invited to Gibbons Ceremony.

An invitation was extended to the order by Rev. George A. Dougherty, vice rector of the Catholic University, to participate at the corner-stone laying of the Gibbons memorial at the Catholic University October 12. Rev. Dr. Dougherty expressed his thanks for the generosity of the A. O. H. in endorsing the university with a fund of $5,000 for the maintenance of a chair of Gaelic language and literature.

Referring to the present unsettled state of affairs in Europe and the growing distrust among European powers, Robert Small, one of the oldest and most prominent members of the Hibernians, paid high praise to the wisdom of the revolutionary fathers in incorporating in the Constitution the provision preventing the United States from entering into entangling alliances with foreign powers.

Opposed to Arbitration.

Mr. Small said the Irish citizens of the United States are unalterably opposed to any treaty with any foreign power, especially when it is submitted to America under the guise of an arbitration and peace treaty. His remarks were enthusiastically received.

The meeting was presided over by P. S. Carr, District president, and others who spoke were Thomas McGrath, district treasurer; William J. McEvoy, district secretary; Capt. P. J. Halligan, editor of the National Hibernian; James A. Myers, president of division No. 5; and Mr. Bradley of the same division; Norris Sheehan, president of division No. 2; Capt. T. Moore, national director of the order, and James Donoghue, of Boston.

Red Cross to Send Relief.

The National Red Cross will probably take action to-day to aid the sufferers of the flood disaster at Austin and Costello. Ernest P. Bicknell, a relief expert of the society, left Washington Saturday for the scene of the disaster and arrived there yesterday. The officers of the society are awaiting a report from him as to what character of relief measures are most needed before calling upon the public for assistance.
